COMMUNITY

What is at the core of our school? A community, a group of people linked by a common interest, location, or background. Our community has several bonds, some that are fresh and growing stronger and others that have been indestructible for years. At Pope John you find both teachers and students who have worked or studied together for over a decade. Yet most people meet and become friends when they become members of the Pope John community. When you step foot into this building, you can feel the friendship, love and care. The unity we share is apparent and strong.

Because we are a small school, we have several opportunities to connect with the people around us through sports, clubs, and classes. These small groups come together as a unit; our student body comes together as a whole. In this school, you can't walk alone. There will always be a teacher willing to help and a student willing to listen. You will always find where you belong, whether it's on our math team, the defending champions in their division, or in our adventure club. In the following pages you will see how your fellow students interact and connect with each other.

Connect

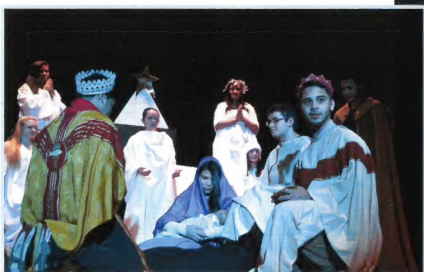

One important aspect of academics is how students connect with each other. Communication and working together allow us to form connections that make us enjoy learning even more. Pictured: Kameliah Wiley (12) and Brianna Nocivelli (12) take a closer look at things in the Biology lab, where teamwork is always necessary.

As a community

Professing the Catholic faith is a major role and priority of our school community such as having daily morning prayer, prayer services, masses, and retreats. During these services, the school community participates in all of these religious services. During the retreats, the school community participates in religious activities which includes group sessions, prayers, fun activities, and much more. When Masses are performed, multiple students participate in parts of the mass such as the readings, Prayers of the Faithful, and the Gifts of the Holy Spirit being brought up to the Alter.

Prayer is what inspires people to become better people and to become inspirations for other people. Sara Lochirco (12) prays the Rosary every week because "I feel like as a Catholic, it's something I should do." Sara also believes that through prayer, the world could be a better place. Besides praying the Rosary, Sara prays everyday for her family, friends, and for world peace. To left, Abigail Cain (12).

Team Work

One way to make a class more fun, yet still be educational, is group work. Group work requires every member to work together as a team in order for things to run smoothly. Throughout the year, various History and English classes held interesting projects. For example, the Holocaust and Genocide Studies class created an interactive time line of the Jewish Holocaust during World War II. Several groups joined forces to create informative presentations. While the AP Language and Composition class created presentations on the Vietnam War in pairs. "I think my partner, Tim, and I worked well together. We're really good friends so we aren't afraid to critique each others work", said Phuong Ngu (11). "We worked together as a team and split the work equally".

As a Body

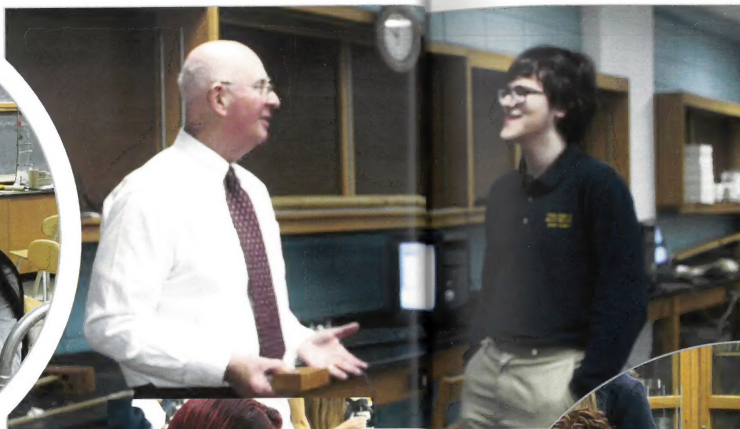

Math and Science require a lot of group work and rigorous studying. Through these classes, we learn how to work as a team and cooperate with each other. Morgan Ronan(12) has had a dream to become a doctor since she was a child. In order to approach her dream, she took Honors Biology in her Freshman year to prepare her further studies in AP Biology, which is her favorite class. Although she has a lot of homework to do. Her favorite part of the class is group projects and she loves the photosynthesis section the

In preparation for this year's fall play, Black Comedy, the senior Art class helped out with the set. Luca Serra (12) added his touch to one of the painting featured in the show.

Art comes in many forms and often times they interact with each other making the imagination grow to new levels. Many students in the Art 1 class created beautiful pieces of artwork for the fall drama production, Black Comedy. Henry Yu (12, right) painted an unbelievable painting of John Lennon with colors that really popped. Gabrielle D'Antona (11), who was in the production as well as Art 1, says that the art work gave the stage more life and really reflected the characters and the time period. The class taught D'Antona a lot, she said, "I have really enjoyed exploring my art skills, learning about painting, abstract art, and Jackson Pollock." Being in both art class and the production allowed D'Antona to express herself in many ways and she greatly enjoyed the whole process.

Touch screen tables in the Museum of Fine Arts (MFA) allow students to explore different pieces of artwork and even create their own. The sophomore fine arts class did just that on their annual field trip to the museum. Astrid Mendez (10) and Lanster Yang (10) watch Peter Ma (10) while Romika Jean-Jacques (10) creates her own work.

Not only is theatre an activity, it's an elective for students interested in learning the arts of performing. Nate Budwah (11), Jenny Youn (11) and Ayo Adeleke (12) were featured in one of the class' performances.

Strike a pose! Gina Merola (10) and Mary Gill (10) try to imitate one of the poses seen in many ancient pieces of art at the MFA.

Both Juniors and Seniors get to interact in theater class as we see in this scene with Brendan Woodworth (12) and Andrea Orozco (11).

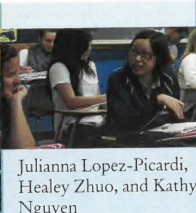

Art can be seen just about everywhere at the MFA from the walls to the ceiling. Ryan Schaefer (10), Peter Ma (10) and Alex Jun (10) admired the beautiful paintings above them as they look up in awe.

Clubs are the best way for students to find the thing that they are most interested and share a bond with others that hold those same interests. Joining clubs gives students the opportunity to find the community that they belong in. Pictured: Phillip Jun (12) and Guilherme Cavalcanti (11) work hard to set new records for the math team.

You + Me = TEAM

I know my calculus...

Winning the division title isn't the first thing that comes to mind when one thinks of the math team, but that's exactly what they did. Their consistent hard work and dedication brought the group to new levels as they reached victory after victory this year. Most of the team's members are international students and it's the main way for them to get involved in the school community. Joining different activities such as the math team allows these students to get to know other international students as well as the American students and creates an even tighter, diverse bond that makes not only our math team, but entire school unique.

Bruce Liu (11) digs into his textbook, looking at similar problems and answers for reassurance.

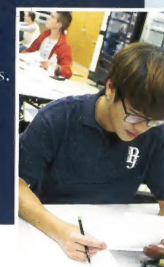

Members of Pope John's math club gather two times a month in Room 228, Mr. Skerry's classroom. Mathletes receive a thick packet containing practice problems for the upcoming math meet the following month. Math meets occur on the first Thursday of each month. Each meet can last for over 4 hours. At the end of the day, mathletes are satisfied with full bellies of endless pizza and wait to compete in the next meet.

Frank Ding became captain of the Pope John math team during the beginning of his senior year. Frank was given this title because of his excellent performance last year as the highest scoring underclassman. "I feel honorable to be selected as the captain, however there is a lot of responsibility in being a captain." Frank has to assign members to the rounds they will participate in and also determine whether or not a member will be a regular or an alternate. Regulars are the people whose answers count; points are given for correct answers. Alternates are people who also answer problems, however their answer will not count on the scoreboard. It is a way for students to practice their math skills.

Language isn't a barrier for Frank. Math is a universal language. This year, the math team has won every meet. "We have a strong team," Frank states. He is very hopeful for next year's team when he will graduate. "They are all very good, smart, and easy to get along with. I like them all." Frank will carry his mathematic touch with him in his pursuit to major in economics. Next year's team captain has big shoes to fill!

"I wanted to be a regular, because I wanted to do something for the school and do something for me, too. When I apply for college, it will look good that I was helping the school. In competition, we go together and we fight for our school, which is the best part."

"Honestly, before joining the math club, I felt like I lacked some Pope John pride. I never participated in a sport or a club that required cooperation with others. But now, as a member of the math team, I feel the Tiger Pride flowing through my veins. I am very proud to be a member of the math team."

Documenting Memories

Being an editor is tough, but it's even tougher being an editor of both the yearbook and newspaper as Kamila Rodrigues (12) would know. Rodrigues never had a newspaper or yearbook before high school so that is where the interest started along with her motivation to join as many clubs as possible and her love for writing. "Yearbook gives me an outlet to be creative and to learn about the people at Pope John that I wouldn't usually be around," said Rodrigues. Not only have these two activities helped her with her writing skills during high school, but she also believes that they will help her with the writing and deadlines she will have to face in college next year. Rodrigues was also lucky enough to be one of the few students to attend the JEA (Journalism Education Association) conference in Boston this year. She said "I absolutely loved JEA because there were so many options to learn about. I was able to learn more about photography and writing better stories. In a way it inspired me and helped me to chose a possible major in college."

Her last advice to future journalists is "If you want to write a story, write it. Don't be afraid of what people think even if it's an emotional or strange story because you'll regret it. Capture the story from all angles." Rodrigues says she really enjoyed and was honored to be editor in two activities and she is certain that what she has learned will help her in many different aspects throughout her future.

Interconnected

We are all

Imagine what three hundred to six hundred students from all over Massachusetts would look like. Now, imagine yourself in a room with them. Pretty stuffy right? Speech and debate tournaments are very intense. Students from all over Massachusetts come together to compete in speaking events. Students are called to memorize works of literature, speeches, etc. and recite it to a judge and other competitors. Each competitor participates in three rounds; there are over twelve rounds. Tournaments do not last a few hours, it takes up the whole day. The long hours can really get to students at times.

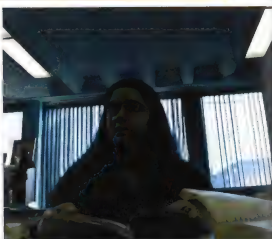

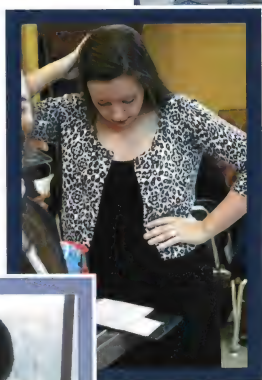

Eric Iceng, Brian Byeon and Peter Ma are always working together to pass the time. These three individuals are inseparable when it comes to speech and debate tournaments. After a round or two, these three musketeers gather up at their table to relax. Sometimes they are found playing cards and sometimes they just sit back and talk about life. "We helped each other by checking the time for upcoming rounds," says Brian. Eric says, "Speech and debate tournaments really help us with public speaking skills," Peter states "We encouraged each other when it was our turn and watched each other's performance for each round." From the looks of it, it seems that you cannot have one without the others.

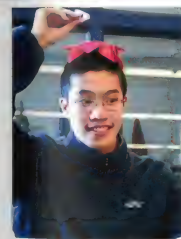

"We're all able to experience something different while reading the same thing; it gives us a chance to explore a different world." - Quezia Lacerda (12)

Speech and Debate, Crafternoons and Book Club allows students to gather together and explore their interests. Speech and Debate Club encourages students to improve on their speaking and presenting skills. Competitors learn how to manage their time while presenting their pieces to a judge. They also need to be able to memorize the pieces of work they are presenting.

Crafternoons is a club which speaks for itself; students gather in the afternoon to make crafts. It is a time for students to take a break from the long school day and just relax. Students get the chance to explore their artistic side. Sometimes you can find a crafter working with origami paper to make a lotus flower or even a parakeet. With a curriculum that already focuses a lot on reading, students barely have enough time to read for pleasure. However, students in Book Club get the chance to do their own reading. These avid readers gather together to pick books to read and discuss over the school year.

Leading the

Ranging from student government, to diversity club and National Honor Society, students have been able to truly make a difference within our community. Samantha Chen (10), states, "Being in student government means that I am able to help create a positive and fun environment where students can learn and spend time with their friends."

Aside from those elected to be in student government, the diversity club is composed of students who volunteered in an effort to join the entire school through various events.

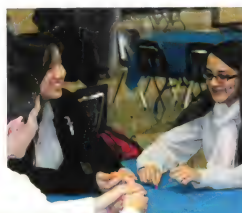

Seeing that we have students from all over the world, this club was created in an effort to learn from one another.

Pumpkin carving, gingerbread house making, and Albanian Culture Day were only a few of the events coordinated by the diversity club. Field Day was the biggest school wide event in which everyone was separated from their friends and put into groups with others you necessarily would not reach out to. Field Day was extremely successful and diversity club leader, Tony Huynh (12) commented "This club has really helped people around the school get to know each other better while also helping people interact with others they usually would not."

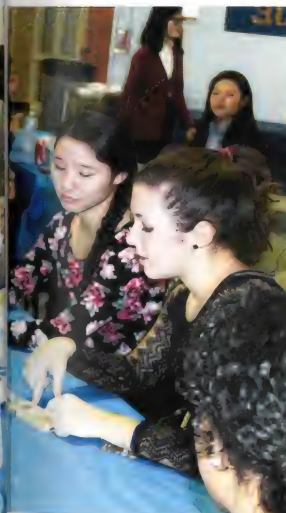

National Honor Society is another club at Pope John, composed of juniors and seniors. Throughout the entire school year, NHS took it upon themselves to offer tutoring services to everyone and anyone who needs assistance. Melissa DeLeo (11) thinks, "Being in NHS is great. It is new to me but being in student government gives me experience planning. I love getting together and helping while making the school a better place by getting everyone to work together and creating a tight knit community."

"Show time!", those are the words that hold the power to cause any actor to have a serious case of the nerves before a show. The actor may pace around and around repeating their lines over and over again until they feel like they have got it down perfectly. Pope John's very own Drama Club members have put on numerous productions throughout this year, which include Black Comedy, Wiley and the Hairy Man and ended with the musical The Little Mermaid. Tommy O'Connor, who performed in all three said, "Performing in front of people is something unreal... I love entertaining people and being able to entertain a whole crowd at once is an incredible feeling. Of course I get nerves, I think everyone does and how I deal with them is by trying to turn all that pent up anxiousness into energy. But the best way I find for dealing with nerves is to just go out there and do it, the nerves go away after the first line goes well". O'Connor said of his favorite scene this year, "Oh man, that's a tough one. I think my favorite scene is from Black Comedy where by character finally snapped at Morgan's character. I really enjoyed that scene because it was just so serious compared to the rest of the play. Plus, I got to yell, which is always fun". Finally, O'Connor was asked what his favorite part of drama was, he replied, "It would probably be taking on a character and being able to project yourself into him or her. You get to become someone else, like having a new life. After awhile you see that the character becomes more like you and vice versa. You grow more as the play progresses, corny as it sounds".

Bringing people together is vital for a community. Everyone is different, but there are moments where we must embrace our differences and become a unit. Whether it's competitive or just for fun, several events are held throughout the year for students to be creative and work together. This is the one day that all our students come together as one to participate in multiple activities, and to celebrate a very important event which is, Chinese New Year. This year the faculty put together a day in which every teacher represented a country, and students from every grade were out together in a group, creating a day in which students had the chance to interact with students they never had the chance to.

Michael Revisha (12), Duke Serle (11), Owen Xu (11), Durian Rezaide (12), Jacob Getro (9), Ryan Schaefer (12), Kevin Zenevier (Fac), Anthony Hill (9), Nates Buchwah (11), Aaron Mendez (10) and Marc Giff (12)

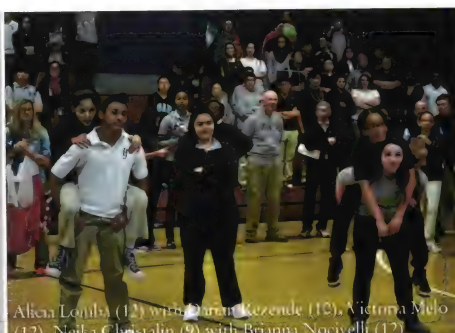

One of the greatest and most interesting events of the day was definitely the dragon dance. Khue Tran (12), Tommy Nguyen (11) and graduate Andy Pham, really had the students engaged throughout the whole performance. I really liked doing the dragon dance, although it is very tiring and a times sore." Khue Tran (12)

"Spirit day was pretty fun, I liked all the activities. Meeting new people was cool. I think the school should have more days like this so we can all get to know each other." Anthony Cuellar (12) with Ayo Adeleke (12) and Philip Kelly (11).

One of the most interacting activities of the day was Chivalrous Couples, which 2 students from each team would have to pay attention to Eric Burke (Fac) and Caitlyn Oates (Fac) instructions in order to win points for their team. "I love the unity spirit day brings to our school. I enjoyed getting to know the students of other grades as well as those in my grade, that I don't usually talk to. When everyone in your group is nice and all take part you really see the spirit of Pope John." Alicia Lomba (12).

On Chinese New Year day we all went our families were united I appreciate Mr. Vance and Mrs. Nancy because they provide us with Chinese food in the dormitory and they keep all the traditions alive. I feel very lucky to live and study at Pope John." Michelle Wang (12)

Tigers' During the 2013-2014 school year, Tigers went to many places. At the beginning of December in 2013, Pope John seniors went to New York City, creating some of their best high school memories in those two days. The New York trip is irreplaceable to every senior who went. In 2014, Tigers flew to Europe, spending their amazing winter break in Germany, Hungary, Czech Republic, Slovakia and Austria. Different places brought unique memories for everyone.

It was Kamila Rodrigues' first time performing at school. The Coffee House is open to everyone who loves music, art, and poetry. That was part of the reason why she signed up. When she stood on the stage, she was a little nervous. She likes singing with her friends because she feels more comfortable. Students painted, drew, and photographed some fantastic pieces to show. Some students recited poetry, others sang, while the art from the advanced classes was on display. Unlike previous years' Coffee House performances, this year's winter performance was on the 5th Floor Residence Hall Common Room to encourage more international students to participate. Pictured right: Tommy O'Connor played his ukelele for the crowd.

Abby Cain (12) began playing varsity as a sophomore and has evolved into a player the team could not do without. When questioned why she decided to play as a sophomore, Cain responded with, "All of my friends had been playing and I had just wanted to try something new, the sport seemed fun." Unfortunately last year as a junior, Abby suffered from a broken toe and as a result sat out for a majority of the season. "That was the silliest injury that could've happened to me and at the wrong time. It made me so upset to be sitting on the bench, when all I wanted to do was play. At the same time I brought that same emotion with me this year and that motivated me to play my heart out," Abby stated. All of her efforts definitely paid off, she was named the MVP of the season! Fellow teammate Brianna Nocivelli (12) had mentioned, "Abby's positivity and energy really helped us out this season."

Flipping a New Page Together

The Pope John Tigers are truly a one of a kind team that exhibits the essence of teamwork, skill, communication, and passion. Both of our teams have put forth tremendous effort to get to where they are today. Our varsity team in particular has grown a lot since last year. They went from a record of 5-15 to 15-5. Senior Amanda Reis (12) says, "We have grown so much since last year, it's crazy. I think it's because our whole varsity team is seniors and we all have a mutual respect for one another. Also because we all knew it was Rich Fineran's (fac) last year coaching and we wanted nothing more than to make him proud." One of the most memorable games of the season was the Marian home game. Almost the entire school came to support their Tigers in the most nail-biting game in years. The fans came through even more when the varsity team made it into the state tournament. The team met their goal by getting into the state tournament, and although they were defeated in the North semi-finals, the Tigers are still the true champions of the season. As a result of the whole varsity team being seniors, it is up to the upcoming underclassmen to fill the spots, although that should be no problem. Jessica Furtado (10) said, "I love my team, everyone is so friendly and that makes coming to play together, so much fun."

Kamila Rodrigues (12) winds up for her powerful serve.

A Fresh Start Calls

The boys' soccer team had a difficult time this season because a majority of the players were new comers. Many had never met before the season started, and they had little time to get to know each other before their first few games. More than half the team comes from overseas, which allowed all of them to come together and show how universal soccer is. Adjusting was difficult, but eventually the boys found a way to collaborate, they started finding each others strengths. As challenging as it was, our boys won two games this season.

Jorge Galvez is currently a sophomore international student from Mexico. He began playing soccer at the age of 7. Since that ripe age, Jorge has had a fondness for this sport. When asked on the triumphant games, Jorge said, "These two games were the ones we fought for....our boys could have won every game if there was more passion.... not that our tigers did not have the ability to." There were great improvements from all of the players. Despite all of the losses, the team plans on improving next year because most of the players will be returning and will already have an established bond on the field.

Around the Halls and Fields

Santiago Ardena (14) has played soccer for six years. For the past two years, Santiago has played for the New England Revolution Academy. From 10 to 11 years old, he played for the New England Revolution. He hopes to continue playing soccer in college. His position is center attack, which he began playing at the Academy. The two best things about soccer, according to Santiago, is scoring a goal. At a young age, Santiago is a remarkable player. He has been in the top 10 in the world since he was 10 years old. He got into the top 10 in the world. Santiago is a very dedicated player in Revolution Academy in Foxboro, MA.

Pushing Boundaries

This year's girl's team faced the challenge of having injured players; but it did not weaken the team, and made them stronger and adaptable to different positions on the field. One major injury was that of Sarah Chen (12), the team's goalie. As a first year goalie, Chen suffered multiple concussions and had a very scary incident at a home game and was taken away on a stretcher. Her team was at the hospital rooting for her recovery, knowing she would do the same in return. They defeated the injuries and odds, and together entered the state finals. These girls gave the season their all and overcame every obstacle as a unit.

Aside from being a major soccer star at Pope John, senior Maggie McCormack plays for the SF Vikings Soccer Club, in Northshore, MA in the spring and summer. Maggie has been playing since she was 7, and has been a Viking since age 9. She rotates between center mid field, outside defender, and center back. McCormack takes on the responsibility of being a captain on both teams. She said, "Being captain does not mean dictator." She encourages her teammates with her genuine comments during games. McCormack believes, "Teams play their best when they enjoy the people they are playing with."

This year our school didn't have enough sign-ups for a football team, so our school united with another school's football team. Five students from our school participated in the Co-op with Chelsea High School and they really became a part of the team. Lucas De Oliveira was a crucial member of the squad and he was featured in local newspapers several times. Lacking a home team to cheer for, the Fall Cheer team, as a result, focused on their competitive cheer routines. In the winter, they were able to do more with basketball games at home, in the gym. Overall, despite few members and several challenges, the teams brought together the school in a spirited way. The boys who joined the Co-op made Pope John proud by assimilating into a new place just for a love of football and got our name out there. The cheer team pumped up crowds and will hopefully continue to grow as it has the past few years!

New Tiger on the Court

One can imagine how difficult it is to transfer to another school after already being accustomed to one. However, Jade Moore (11) did not let that stop her. "I felt a little nervous but since everyone was so nice, I fit in perfectly." Jade Moore transferred from Cathedral High School to Pope John after hitting a large milestone; she scored 1000 points during her sophomore year. She has been playing basketball ever since she was nine years old. Not only has Jade made a smooth transition into another high school but she has given the girls basketball team new skills and a new perspective in the game. The team in turn, welcomed Jade as if they were family.

Can't hold us back

The Pope John Girls Basketball team has put many efforts in practice every single day. No pain, no gain. Head coach Jake Feraco along with assistants CJ Cann and John Baressi and captains Maggie McCormack (12), Amanda Reis (12), Katelyn Tansino (12) and Linda Perry (12) led the girls through an amazing season this year, ending the regular season with an 18-3 record. The girls made it into the division four state tournament, advancing until the third round where they ended their season 20-4.

Tim Collins (11), one of the captains on Pope John's Varsity Basketball has been playing ever since he was seven years old. Collins said, "I've loved the game since the day I started." Basketball involves a lot of skills to efficiently manage time. Planning your day around games is a necessity. Balancing practices and games with schoolwork can be tough for this ambitious junior. Collins has continued to play for nine years and counting. His favorite part about basketball is that in order to be great, you have to work hard and dedicate

Sarah Tran (11) plays on the tennis team as a first doubles. She has been playing tennis since Freshman year. Tran says, "My favorite part about playing tennis is competing against other schools because I get to play against different people with different playing techniques. It improves my game". Tran finds inspiration in her father, who taught her how to play. "My dad was the one who introduced me to playing tennis. He took me to the courts one day and taught me simple shots, like the forehand. Tennis is something my dad and I have in common and we are able to bond. My dad motivates me to try my best when I play matches". Like any athlete, balancing sports and academics is tough, but that does not stop this Tiger. "I try to balance athletics and academics by taking it one step at a time. After school, I will go to practice or a match. Afterwards, I will go home, relax, then start my homework. It's tough, but I try to get through it".

New Additions

A new addition to the Pope John community this spring was the boys volleyball team. An interest was raised by a group of students to add the sport to the athletic program and the rest is history. Mitch Ma (11) was very excited when he heard about the new plans. "I don't play baseball and there were no other boy's sports going on in the spring. Also Mr. Fineran asked me if I would like to play for him" said Ma. "It's my first time ever in my life playing volleyball and I have a lot to learn. I know it's not going to be easy and I always like to challenge myself. We have a decent team so I'm looking forward to this season. I'm excited to get the first victory of the boy's volleyball team in Pope John history!" Ma said that despite what the end result is, the most important thing is that the team had fun. He feels extremely honored to be playing on this team and is excited to set new milestones.

Once a Tiger...

Always a Tiger

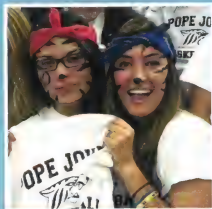

Anthony Cuellar (12) and Curtis Melesciuc (12)

The Pope John community is filled with devoted fans who make it a priority to make it to as many games as possible to support their Tigers. Tiger Superfan Kamila Rodrigues (12) says, "I go to as many games as I can because I know what it feels like to be on the court, and the crowd impacts the game tremendously, so I like to return the favor and support my friends!"

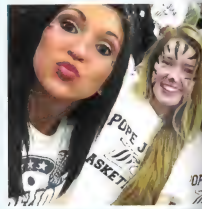

Dianna Grajales (12) leans on peer Kevin Landers (12) during an intense girls basketball tournament game.

Seniors Dianna Grajales (12) and Irene Triantos (12) show their Tiger pride at the Semi-Finals girls tournament basketball game.

Brooke Sullivan (12) and Luca Serra (12) look on as the Pope John Tigers enter the court.

Gianna Colantuoni (11) and Brooke Sullivan (12) rep their new Pope John Basketball shirts.

Relate

Though there are many small moments where students create bonds, there are also events dedicated to bringing Tigers together and forming new friendships. Lifetime

Friendship

Many students in the senior class have known each other for all of their education. Dressed up as little girls, Iris Dunn (12) said, "I met Julia Bosco(12) in kindergarten at St. Rose and we've been friends since then. When I found out that she was also going to enroll at Pope John, we made plans to play soccer together and it has been 13 great years having her as a friend and team mate." Enrique Serrano(12) and Anthony Cuellar(12) as cousins have spent more than just school time together.

Known as the St. Anthony's kids, Alex Yasien(12), Kevin Landers(12), Nick Landers(12), Amanda Reis(12) and Dianna Grajales(12) have all gone to school together since kindergarten. They all applied to Pope John at the same time but only found out that they were all going to attend the same high school on their middle school graduation day.

A family connection brings many of the senior class to our school. Pictured left, Khue Tran (12) and Linh Li (12), "...Have been friends since we were four and we're family friends, that's how we ended up going to school together." Juan Marrero(12) decided upon going to St. Rose at the age of 12 and that is where he met Linh Le(12) and Khue Tran(12). With the long-lasting connections to one another, it's easy to see how many of our students feel right at home in this community.

Colophon Information:

Pope John XXIII High School 2014 Yearbook's theme is dedicated to the tight-knit, diverse students and staff that have formed a unique community at 888 Broadway. The theme and design, inclusive of the cover, was inspired by staffers from last year, Francesca Mantone, Taylor Pandolfo and Kamila Rodrigues with the help of Walsworth's Kevin Simoneau.

The book was published by Walsworth Publishing in Marceline, Missouri with representatives Cheryl Popp and Dana Davis. It is an 8.5" x 11" trim on Legend Gloss 80 pound paper, with 88 pages in full color. The cover is a gloss laminate with a laser cut and a Smyth Sewn Hard Cover. Design was done in Walsworth's Online Design with photo dividers edited by PhotoShop. Headline font is Impact and copy is Garamond. Professional photography was completed by Prestige by Lifetouch in Melrose, MA with Terry Bleiler as the account manager. 18 copies of the book were sold at graduated rates of $45 - $50 and $55; the senior class received a copy as a part of their graduation dues for a total copy order of 125 books. The book was released at a party on May 8, 2014.
